As a result of the civil war in South Sudan, two million people have been internally displaced within the country. The population lacks food, water and medical care. Our teams supply families with basic necessities and teach them how to increase the local production of food. Children benefit from a food project school and are offered safe areas where they can play, learn and get psychosocial help.

Child protection

Our local experts organise psychosocial support in protected areas for children and their families living in resettlement camps in Juba, as well as in our other intervention areas in South Sudan. Our local experts organise psychosocial activities to give children and families affected by the conflict some support.

Water, Sanitation and Hygiene

We improve access to water, sanitation and hygiene promotion services to the students of Yei schools affected by the conflict. The Blue Schools are equipped with hand washing stations and toilets and school children adopt hand washing routines to prevent the spread of diseases. Once the basic water and sanitation requirements are fulfilled in a school, the pathway integrates learning experiences on small-scale sustainable gardening, good land and water management practices, collection and separation of waste and about the topic of gender. Blue Schools support education authorities and teachers to include environmental education and safe water and sanitation in schools.
